General Guidelines for ticket Booking Early Booking

It is important that employees plan and book their travel as early as possible to leverage cost effective options. Based on our experience, the price difference can be up to 60% lower compared to last minute bookings.

Tips:

1. Use of restricted tickets (non-changeable, non-refundable) saves between 20% to 60%.
2. Some low-cost carriers allow a change with a small administrative fee (e.g., EasyJet, Southwest, Spice etc.)
3. 2 One stop business class flight with up to 2 hours stop-over must be accepted in order to reduce fares for trip above 3 days long; this can reduce business class prices by up to 50%.
4. Early booking is more cost effective: 40% to 60% off the ticket price if booked 1 month in advance or more. 20% to 40% off the ticket price if booked 15 days in advance or more.

5. Flight itinerary: you must make every effort to accept the lowest logical fare option as defined below:
 - For domestic flights, if there is a different non-stop flight within 1 hour of your desired departure time, lowest logical fare option will be offered.
 - For regional flights, if there is a different non-stop flight within 2 hours of your desired departure time, lowest logical fare option will be offered.
 - For intercontinental flights, if there is a different non-stop flight within 8 hours of your desired departure time, lowest logical fare option will be offered.
 - First class is prohibited.
 - For trips shorter than 3 business days, direct flights could be requested. Restricted air tickets are mandatory when they are the lowest logical fare. These tickets are economical than flexible fares.
 - Any exceptions to the lowest logical fare will be tracked and reported during the booking process.
 - Wherever possible, train transportation should be considered by employees alongside air while assessing the lowest logical fare.
 - Due consideration should be given to cost, particularly for internal meetings.
